Save Us from Thieves.

The fingers of the gentry, called light, have fallen rather heavy on our people within the last fortnight. We have been smitten hip and thigh; routed horse foot and dra

On our local page we give an imperfect list of the pocket-picked at the Weldon Fair, or thereabouts.

And now the average pastoral patriot sadly misseth his watch, that was wont to nestle cozily in his fob, and perhaps the febs of his fathers before him.

No more the glitter of the chain nor the gleam of the charm dazzleth and delighteth his eye.

Because we are a rustic people, green, and unused to the winning ways and wickedness of the pickpockets, shall we be given over to thieves, bag and baggage, serip and scribbage?

Because we derive exceeding amusement from the agricultural Fairs shall we become victims and people. led like sheep to the shambles?

Telegrams from New York and Baltimore warned the officers of the Richmond and Weldon Fairs, that pickpockets and confidence men were migrating South in great numbers for the fall harvest.

They were also informed that they would probably pitch their tents in these camp grounds.

Then why, oh why did they not ship police officers enough to circumvent these artful dodgers? Special country police, such as we have, are as much equal to the emergency, as a lightningbug compares with a star.
